HOME TO ROOST

Redland's Rosemary Clay Classic tiles in Red have been specified as the vertical cladding for the new Welsh Joint Education Committee (WJEC) Headquarters in Cardiff.

The WJEC is an innovative and eye-catching building designed to complement the picturesque adjoining parkland. Capita Symonds Architects prioritised the aesthetics of the natural surroundings when they selected Redland's Rosemary Clay Classic.

With this in mind, Alex Robertson, the project architect at Capita Symonds states: 'The south elevations of the WJEC face onto a large area of parkland. During the design process, we decided to clad these areas of the building in a material that would appear soft, domestic and with subtle variations in colour. Hanging Rosemary clay tiles to form a rain screen in these areas provided the aesthetic that we wanted.'

Project Architect, Alex Robertson, explains how they accommodated the local wildlife:

'There were bats present on the site and we were required to provide roosting areas within the new development. We incorporated this into the clay tile cladding, providing handmade access tiles at high level, so that the bats could live amongst the battens behind.'

The Redland Rosemary range is synonymous with natural clay plain tiles, adding distinction and character to UK roofing for over 175 years. Produced exclusively by Redland from the finest clays as single and cross-cambers, Rosemary Clay Classic tiles are offered in a range of brindle, weathered and red colours that create attractive roofs and building claddings.

The Rosemary name is synonymous with quality clay plain tiles, adding distinction and character to pitched roofs for over 175 years. Today, a range of single and cross-camber tiles combine the quality of hand crafted clay with the reliability of modern machine-made techniques. Produced from the finest clays, Rosemary is offered in a range of weathered, brindled and single colours.
